

PREFACE
#	Page	Section/Policy	Proposed Amendment	Sponsor	Meeting
1.	N/A	Preface: Add a Land Acknowledgement	Whatcom County Government acknowledges that present day Whatcom County is located on the traditional, ancestral, and unceded territory of the Lummi Nation and Nooksack Indian Tribe, as well as other Coast Salish peoples who have lived in and stewarded this land since time immemorial. We honor their enduring connection to the lands and waters of this region — including the Salish Sea, rivers, forests, and mountains — and recognize their continued presence, sovereignty, and cultural traditions. We express our respect and gratitude for their stewardship of this place and commit to learning from and supporting Indigenous communities today. Truth and acknowledgment are critical to building mutual respect and connection across all barriers of heritage and difference. We begin this effort to acknowledge what has been buried by honoring the truth. We pay respect to the elders past and present. We take a moment to consider the many legacies of violence, displacement, migration, and settlement that bring us together here today and seek to uncover such truths in all that we do.	Galloway /Rienstra
2.	N/A	Preface: Add a labor Acknowledgement	Whatcom County as it stands today is only possible because of ancestors, elders, and those who have gone before us. The Whatcom County government acknowledges the labor that built our county, institutions, and infrastructures. Our region depended on the labor, dehumanization, exploitation, suffering, wisdom, and skills of: enslaved people primarily of African descent, Indigenous peoples of this land, the Chinese immigrants who built railroads that allowed for westward American development, Japanese Americans whose properties and livelihoods were taken from them while incarcerated during World War II, and migrant workers from the Philippines, Mexico, South Asia, and Central and South America who have worked lumber mills, farms, and canneries within harsh and unjust systems. We recognize the immigrant and American-born workers of African, Asian, and Central and South American descent whose labor often remains unseen yet contributes to the wellbeing of our collective community. We acknowledge all unpaid care-giving labor.	Galloway /Rienstra
3.	N/A	Preface Labor Acknowledgement	Whatcom County as it stands today is only possible because of ancestors, elders, and those who have gone before us. The Whatcom County government acknowledges the labor that built our county, institutions, and infrastructures. Our region depended on the labor, dehumanization, exploitation, suffering, wisdom, and skills of: enslaved people primarily of African descent, Indigenous peoples of this land, the Chinese immigrants who built railroads that allowed for westward American development, Japanese Americans whose properties and livelihoods were taken from them while incarcerated during World War II, and migrant workers from the Philippines, Mexico, South Asia, and Central and South America who have worked lumber mills, farms, and canneries within harsh and unjust systems. We recognize the Dutch community with	Stremler

			their wisdom and skills to develop agriculture lands which remains a vital part of Whatcom County's economy. We recognize the immigrant and American-born workers of African, Asian, and Central and South American descent whose labor often remains unseen yet contributes to the wellbeing of our collective community. We acknowledge all unpaid care-giving labor.
4.	N/A	Preface Land Acknowledgement	Whatcom County Government acknowledges that present day Whatcom County is located on the traditional, and ancestral, and unceded territory homelands of the Lummi Nation and Nooksack Indian Tribe, as well as other Coast Salish peoples who have lived in and stewarded this land since time immemorial. We honor their enduring connection to the lands and waters of this region — including the Salish Sea, rivers, forests, and mountains — and recognize their continued presence, sovereignty, and cultural traditions. We express our respect and gratitude for their stewardship of this place and commit to learning from and supporting Indigenous communities today. Truth and acknowledgment are critical to building mutual respect and connection across all barriers of heritage and difference. We begin this effort to acknowledge what has been buried by honoring the truth. We pay respect to the elders past and present. We take a moment to consider the many legacies of violence, displacement, migration, and settlement that bring us together here today and seek to uncover such truths in all that we do.	Galloway	